

EAT AND DRINK

Eat and drink high in the sky: Rooftop bars and restaurants in NYC

By GEORGIA KRAL May 7, 2015

It's pretty cool to eat and drink on a sidewalk or in a backyard garden, but isn't a rooftop better? Views!

And now that warm weather is finally here, it's time to talk about the best rooftop bars and restaurants in NYC.

Top of the Strand

If you want a hugely impressive, unobstructed Empire State Building view, swing by the Top of the Strand at the Strand Hotel. The cabana area was arranged by set designer Lydia Marks of "Sex and the City."

33 W. 37th St., topofthestrand.com

(Credit: Top of the Strand)

The Roof at Park South

This newly revamped rooftop was designed to appeal to the after-work crowd looking to unwind after a busy day. Classic cocktails and small plates make up the appealingly straight-forward menu and views of course are great.

125 E. 27th St., roofatparksouth.com